Vol. 24 No. 22 READING TO KNOW May 29, 2016

How much does the average person know about the Bible? As evidenced by the confusion that exists in the religious world (e.g., so many different man-made religions and denominations) and the number of people who are anti-religious or simply irreligious, it becomes clear that many people do not know as much as they need to about the Bible. Why don't people know more about the bible? Obviously, most people simply don't read it.

Jesus, in the course of his teaching, often questioned his listeners by saying "have you not read?", and would then proceed to ask about the subject under consideration at the moment, (Matthew 12:3; 19:4; 21:16, 42; 22:31). By questioning in this manner Jesus focused attention on his audience's responsibility to have some degree of familiarity with what the Scriptures said.

Consider Nehemiah 8:3, 8 and 18. As Ezra and Nehemiah were restoring the ancient order of worship among the Jews returning from captivity, note the emphasis on reading the law of God. Jesus, knowing God's mandate to read the Old Testament Scriptures, held his audiences responsible for having done so.

However, in addition to asking "have you not read?", Jesus sometimes told the Jews that they were in error because they did not know the Scriptures (Matthew 22:29; 21:42; Mark 12:10, 24; John 7:42). His question about their reading, therefore, implied that they should not only have read, but also to have learned. We may conclude, then, that there must be a reading of God's word with the intent to know God's word! The Ethiopian eunuch read Isaiah (Acts 8:28, 30, 32), but he did not know the meaning of what he was reading. Philip helped him to understand what he read (vss 30-31).

Reading, unless it leads to knowledge (i.e., understanding), is only a part of the job of studying God's word!

As we strive to follow God, let us determine to read God's Word more diligently every day. As followers of God, let us determine to read God's Word with the view in mind of knowing God's will, and then let us do it (Ezra 7:10).

-Matt
